Baloch Liberation Army freedom fighters defeated enemy on many fronts in the year 2025. BLA freedom fighters continued to carry out systematic operations against occupying Pakistani army, its collaborators, military installations and agents. To achieve Baloch national liberation, Baloch Liberation Army freedom fighters targeted occupying Pakistani army and its collaborators in special operations with innovation and intensity, while demonstrating their strength as a nation by carrying out successful intelligence-based operations.

Baloch Liberation Army freedom fighters carried out a total of 521 attacks on the enemy this year. In these attacks, more than 1060 enemy military personnel were eliminated and more than 556 enemy personnel and agents were injured as a result of various kinds of attacks. Seventy-five agents involved in informing and facilitating the enemy army were eliminated, including agents who were arrested in raids and sentenced to death by Baloch National Court after confessing to their crimes.

BLA freedom fighters conducted 15 special operations this year, including four operations by BLA's elite unit, Majeed Brigade, six by Fateh Squad, and five by the Special Tactical Operations Squad (STOS), in which occupying forces and their collaborators suffered heavy casualties and property losses. Whenever the occupying army faces the Baloch Liberation Army, the enemy suffers a crushing defeat. This is a clear message to the entire nation that if the Baloch gather their strength, we can easily expel this cowardly occupying army from our land overnight. OP DARRA-E-BOLAN - MASHKAAF, NOSHKI

Operation Dara-e-Bolan completed, historic defeat to the enemy, 354 occupying personnel eliminated - BLA

Baloch Liberation Army today announces the successful conclusion of Operation Dara-e-Bolan on March 18. This operation consisted of two parts, the first phase of which was completed in February 2024 with the capture of Mach city while the second phase began with the attack on the Jaffar Express in March 2025 and was completed after a week of intense battle. In this operation, the occupying Pakistani army suffered the biggest defeat in its history in Balochistan, where more than 354 personnel were eliminated over 100 were wounded and 214 personnel were taken hostage. Due to the enemy's stubbornness and refusal to exchange prisoners of war all the hostages were executed.

During this operation, 13 BLA freedom fighters were embraced martyrdom including six Fidayeen from the Majeed Brigade, four fighters from the Fateh Squad and three fighters from STOS. These martyrs by sacrificing their lives made it clear to the enemy that the Baloch national resistance is invincible, and that the occupying army will have to retreat from the Baloch motherland sooner or later. Among these martyrs was Sangat Beg Muhammad alias Tariq who was awarded the war title of "Sagaar-e-Baloch" by BLA in recognition of his exceptional battle services. This is the second-highest war honour of the organization.

Demonstrating its military prowess, combat skills and intelligence superiority Baloch Liberation Army targeted a convoy of eight Pakistani army buses in Noshki, except Bolan in a VBIED Fidayeen attack and ambushed the targets. More than 90 army personnel were eliminated, and dozens were wounded in this attack. Thus, in just one-week BLA eliminated over 354 enemy personnel and wounded more than 100 while also shooting down a drone reflecting the success of the Baloch resistance force against the enemy's modern military technology.

The operation began with an attack on the Jaffar Express on March 11 where BLA freedom fighters dealt a crushing blow to the enemy eliminating over 30 army, Frontier Corps and police personnel and capturing 214 military personnel. The arrested personnel included members from various regiments and units:

45 personnel from the 41st Division
56 personnel from the 17th Azad Kashmir Regiment
47 personnel from the EME Center
15 personnel from the 25th Baloch Regiment
26 personnel from the 6th Armoured Regiment
25 personnel from the Infantry School

Under the laws of BLA and international rules of war all these personnel were presented before the Baloch National Resistance Court where they were sentenced to death based on irrefutable evidence of their involvement in Baloch genocide, enforced disappearances and war crimes.

Baloch Liberation Army always considers international laws of war and human rights principles. Following these principles Senior Command Council of BLA, instead of immediately implementing the court decision against these prisoners offered the occupying army an exchange of prisoners of war. However, being fully aware of the enemy's breach of promises, cunning nature and deceit, a 48-hour ultimatum was given.

Half of the arrested personnel were confined in the bogies of the Jaffar Express and handed over to the Fidayeen of the Majeed Brigade who were given clear instructions that if the enemy made any military advances the hostages should be executed and the attacking military commandos should be eliminated.

Baloch Liberation Army›s struggle is not driven by hatred but by love for our people and this love is the highest form of humanity.

BOLAN

MARCH

Demonstrating its military prowess, combat skills and intelligence superiority BLA targeted a convoy of eight Pakistani army buses in Noshki, except Bolan in a VBIED Fidayeen attack and ambushed the targets. More than 90 army personnel were eliminated, and dozens were wounded in this attack.

As expected, the enemy drunk with power took the path of aggression and instead of releasing the prisoners of war, launched a military operation. However, only five Fidayeen of the Majeed Brigade eliminated several highly trained Zarrar Company SSG commandos of the Pakistani army for two days. After eliminating dozens of enemy personnel when their last stock of bullets ran out, they embraced martyrdom with their last bullets, making it clear to the enemy that the Baloch resistance would continue under any circumstances.

Meanwhile, special units of BLA the Fateh Squad and STOS were able to divide the remaining prisoners of war into two groups and shift them to safe camps in the mountains. But when the occupying army chose military aggression over negotiations and attempted to attack BLA positions the prisoners of war were sentenced to death as per the decision of the Baloch National Resistance Court, following instructions from the Senior Command Council. The entire responsibility for this decision lies with the Pakistani army which despite having an opportunity they chose to pursue a path of war madness instead of releasing its personnel.

Fierce clashes with the occupying forces continued until March 17, in which the enemy suffered irreparable casualties and was ultimately forced to retreat from Bolan. In these clashes, seven freedom fighters were martyred while vigorously defending the areas under the control of the BLA. They sacrificed their lives to inflict severe damage on the enemy's fighting force and delivered a humiliating defeat on the Balochistan front.

Having engaged the enemy in Bolan, BLA launched another decisive attack in Noshki. A convoy of eight buses carrying Pakistani Army personnel returning to their units after vacation was attacked by the Majeed Brigade with a VBIED. Immediately after the explosion the enemy personnel became unconscious, allowing the BLA's Fateh Squad to ambush and neutralize all personnel in the second bus one by one. After this remaining six buses were ambushed by the freedom fighters, eliminating more than 90 additional personnel and wounding over 50. The inside intelligence provided by the BLA's intelligence wing "ZIRAB," played an important role in this entire operation. After thoroughly analyzing the enemy's movements, military plans and strategy, BLA took timely action which resulted in a complete shift in the balance of the battle and inflicted heavy losses on the occupying army.

The Pakistani army is now resorting to lies, deceit and propaganda to cover up its historic defeat. After suffering a disastrous loss in Bolan Pass and Noshki where over 354 enemy personnel were eliminated more than a hundred were wounded, and dozens were taken as prisoners of war the enemy had no choice but to fabricate lies and cover up its own shame instead of admitting defeat. Pakistan's state institutions, especially its propaganda arm ISPR as always are trying to blame external factors for their failures and are making the tired claim that BLA is backed by Afghanistan or India.

This is the same outdated accusation that Pakistan has always levelled against every resistance to its state terrorism. The fact is that BLA has become an invincible force on the strength of its own land, people and public support. Baloch resistance is a manifestation of the collective strength of the Baloch nation, which does not need any external help.

The relationship between Afghanistan and the Baloch nation is not a new reality but a historical, cultural and geographical one spanning thousands of years. The brotherly bond between Afghans and Balochs is not the result of a sudden political interest, but a living reality passed down through generations. Balochs and Afghans share ties of blood, culture and history that were not established by any external power and cannot be broken. Pakistan's claim that BLA is supported by Afghanistan is in fact a blatant attempt to deny the historical existence of the Afghan-Baloch relationship. However, Pakistan has forgotten that historical facts cannot be erased by its propaganda.

BLA makes it clear in no uncertain terms, that we have no presence in Afghanistan, India or any other country. BLA operates on its own soil and organized among its own people and has evolved into an invincible national military force thanks to the unwavering participation of Baloch youth. Contrary to enemy propaganda, BLA is neither comprised of mercenaries nor beholden to foreign states. Our struggle is a manifestation of the aspirations of the Baloch people. Our movement grows through the sacrifices of Baloch youth and our strength emanates from the unwavering trust of the Baloch people.

If there is a hub of terrorism, it is not Afghanistan rather it is Pakistan. This is the state where the worst terrorist groups in the world roam freely. This is the country where ISIS, Jaish-e-Mohammad, Lashkar-e-Taiba and dozens of other terrorist organizations are not only born but also nurtured under state patronage to spread terror across the world. Pakistan is the world's largest state sponsor of terrorism with documented evidence of its crimes in the UN, USA, EU and most independent media.

The occupying army is making another false claim to cover up its failure that BLA targeted civilians. This propaganda is as baseless as its claim that BLA is backed by external forces. BLA safely released all women, children, the elderly, the sick and civilians on the first day of the attack providing them with safe passage. This is undeniable evidence of BLA's humanitarianism, adherence to high principles of war and respect for international law. All those arrested were military personnel returning to Punjab on leave after participating in the Baloch genocide. Their service cards fully identified them, proving that BLA did not target any civilians but only the occupying enemy army.

BLA's struggle is not based on aggression but on the defense of its motherland. Pakistan imposed this war on Balochistan through military aggression and occupation while BLA fights solely for national defence. Our struggle is not driven by hatred but by love for our people and this love is the highest form of humanity.

The biggest challenge faced by the BLA during Operation Dara-e-Bolan was to prevent harm to civilians at all costs. If BLA's goal had been merely to kill and destroy the entire train was under our control for hours along with the entire area and not even one would have survived. However, adhering to superior war strategies and humanitarian principles we ensured the complete protection of unarmed civilians.

Another tactic of the Pakistani army is to exaggerate BLA's losses while concealing its own to avoid public ridicule. But we make it clear that martyrdom is our motto. The entire leadership of the BLA and every soldier is always ready for martyrdom. We honor our martyrs with profound pride and dignity, immortalizing their sacrifices through national remembrance in history. In contrast Pakistani army hides its dead burying them in unmarked graves so that the people do not learn the truth about its defeats and weaknesses.

Pakistani army is a mercenary force a continuation of the British imperialist army that occupied this region. Its personnel do not fight for ideology but for a salary. This is why they can never match the spirit, courage and resilience of the freedom fighters who are ready to make every sacrifice for the liberation of their motherland. The mercenaries and colonial forces of the Pakistani army can never compete with freedom fighters who embody the highest levels of consciousness and sacrifice. The Pakistani ISPR claims that the rules of war have changed. We are fully prepared to accept these changing rules with a smile and respond to the occupying army in its own language. But the truth is these rules have not been changed by the Pakistani army but by the BLA. BLA has proven that a professional, disciplined and national military force adhering to the principles of international warfare has now emerged on Baloch soil. This force will counter every tactic of the enemy and is preparing for the final battle.

Our message to the mothers of Punjab: do not let your children become fuel for the generals of the Pakistani army. Do not send them to die in Balochistan. You are not our enemy but if your children participate in the Baloch genocide you will only see their bodies. You will be shocked to know that the Pakistani army feels no pride but only shame over the deaths of your children that is why Pakistan hides the bodies of its personnel. If the people of Punjab do not want bloodshed, they must rise against this murderous army and demand accountability for the blood of their children.

In Operation Dara-e-Bolan, 13 freedom fighters of Baloch Liberation Army were embraced martyrdom including five Fidayeen (self-sacrificers) from the Majeed Brigade. A total of six Fidayeen were martyred including the one Fidayee who carried out the VBIED attack in Noshki. Additionally, four veterans from the BLA's special combat unit, Fateh Squad and three fighters from the Special Tactical Operations Squad (STOS) were martyred while fighting bravely. The blood of each fighter is the jewel of this land, and their sacrifices have strengthened the struggle preserving their memory forever in Baloch national history.

Martyr Sangat Beg Muhammad alias Tariq will always be remembered as a leader in the heart of every freedom fighter of the Baloch national resistance. This great warrior from the Gharbak area of Bolan joined BLA in 2018 and quickly became an operational commander due to his extraordinary military skills, strategy and leadership. He was not just a warrior but a military architect carrying out unforgettable attacks on the enemy and ensuring BLA's victories in every battle.

Under the leadership of Beg Muhammad alias Tariq numerous BLA operations succeeded forcing the enemy to retreat on every front. He not only used weapons but also formulated new battle strategies elevating the BLA's operational capacity to new heights. He proved that the Baloch resistance is no longer limited to defensive operations but has evolved into a complete military doctrine.

In recognition of his extraordinary bravery and sacrifice BLA bestows upon him the war honor of "Sagaar-e-Baloch" the second-highest war honor of the organization after "General". Previously only three freedom fighters had received this highest Baloch national honor and now his name is among these immortal warriors. "Sagaar-e-Baloch" means " Sword of Baloch " a title that reflects how he was a weapon that struck fear into the enemy standing firm in the defense of Baloch land.

A NEW ORDER HAS BECOME INEVITABLE IN THE REGION

Baloch Liberation Army presents its clear position in the backdrop of ongoing and escalating conflicts and regional tensions. We strongly reject the idea that Baloch national resistance is a proxy of any state or power. The BLA is neither a pawn nor a silent spectator; Baloch Liberation Army is a dynamic and decisive party. We have our rightful place in the current and future military, political and strategic formation of this region and are fully aware of our role.

At a time when Pakistan, frustrated by its failed military policies and diplomatic isolation, is shouting slogans of traditional deception and false peace, we want to deliver a very clear and unambiguous message to India: every talk of peace, ceasefire and brotherhood from Pakistan is merely a deception, a war tactic and a temporary ruse. The history of this state has been written with the patronage of broken promises, backstabbing and terrorism. This is a state whose hands are stained with blood and whose every promise is soaked in it.

We tell India and other states of the region that the time has passed to believe in Pakistan›s promises. Now is the time for subcontinent and the world to take decisive action against this terrorist state. Pakistan has not only been a breeding ground for global terrorists but also a center for the state-sponsored development of deadly terrorist groups like __Lashkar-e-Taiba_ _Jaish-e-Mohammad_ and _ISIS._ The _ISI_ is the network behind this terrorism, and under its auspices, Pakistan has become a nuclear state of violent ideology, which is becoming a volcano for its own people and for the entire world.

Our armed struggle on motherland Balochistan is testimony to the fact that the Baloch nation, without any external military or financial support is defeating the world's seventh nuclear state on our soil. We have rendered the enemy helpless on mountain fronts, urban fronts and every other front. If we receive political, diplomatic and defense support from the world—especially from India— Baloch nation can eliminate this terrorist state and lay the foundation for a peaceful, prosperous and independent Balochistan. A Balochistan that will not only permanently stop the export of terrorism to the subcontinent but will also begin a new chapter of peace and prosperity in this region.

The BLA also emphasizes that there can never be lasting peace in the subcontinent without eliminating a scourge like Pakistan. As long as this state exists, it will continue to tighten nooses around the necks of the innocent and the smell of gunpowder will continue to spread from Kabul to Kashmir. New generations in this region will continue to be taught hatred, extremism and terrorism. It is time for the world to recognize state of Pakistan— the creator of terrorists—as a terrorist entity and treat it accordingly.

We warn every conscious and powerful party in the region: if Pakistan continues to be tolerated then in the coming years very existence of this state may lead to the ruin of the entire world. The control of nuclear weapons by a fanatical military establishment is a ticking time bomb—not only for the region but for global security.

We assure India that if it makes the final decision to eliminate terrorist state of Pakistan, Baloch Liberation Army, along with the entire nation is ready to attack from western border. We will not only welcome this decision but will become its practical and military arm. We are ready to surround Pakistan from both eastern and western fronts and are eager to drown this menace in its own blood.

If the world, especially states of the subcontinent, do not seize this opportunity, Baloch nation will continue its struggle for liberation on its own. Sooner or later we will destroy this occupying terrorist state and liberate our motherland. However, the longer this process is delayed, the more bloodshed, terrorism and instability the world will have to endure.

BLA is the guarantee of an independent, peaceful and progressive Balochistan. We can be the guarantor of the end of terrorism, regional balance and world peace—if the historical status and steadfast resistance of the Baloch are recognized and Baloch are given the status they deserve.

He remained associated with BLA for a long time and until the last days of his life he remained committed to this national duty, which is based on sacrifice, consciousness and ideological commitment.

Commander Malik Khan Muhammad Marri belonged to a family whose history of resistance is a prominent reference in the collective memory of Balochistan. His grandfather, Jani Khan Marri was martyred while resisting the British colonialists in the famous Battle of Harhab, which marked the beginning of a revolutionary tradition for this family. This tradition was carried forward by his elder brother Ghulam Nabi Marri who stood side by side with Nawab Khair Bakhsh Marri in the armed struggle of 1973 and remained a close companion of Nawab Marri until his death. After him, the tribal turban was placed on the head of Malik Khan Muhammad Marri.

After the arrest of Nawab Noroz Khan during the resistance of 1958, Malik Khan Marri in his youth along with a few comrades reached Jhalawan on foot to help his comrades and began his life of resistance after which he remained an active soldier of Baloch National Liberation Movement for the rest of his life. He was not only a witness to Nawab Noroz Khan's movement but also an active participant and his life was a symbol of that perseverance that neither temporary greed nor the hardships of circumstances could change. His son Zafar Marri was martyred in recent Baloch national movement and he suffered the grief of dozens of martyrdoms in his family.

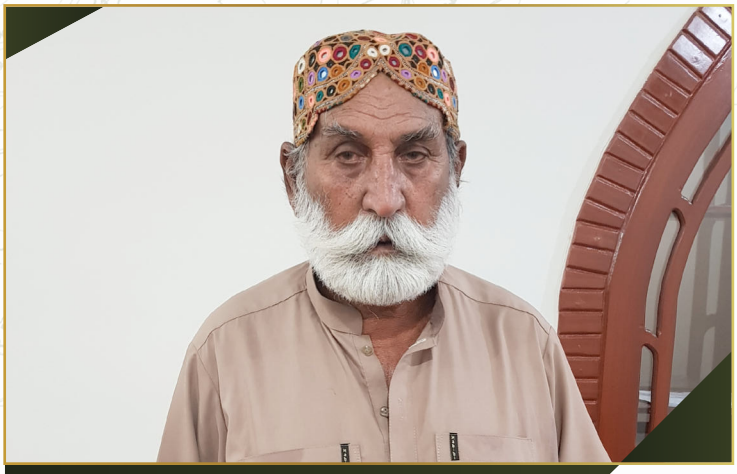
Commander Malik Khan Muhammad Marri was one of the close companions of Martyr Ustad (Mentor) General Aslam Baloch. From 2005, when Aslam Baloch was leading national struggle as the commander of Bolan camp, Malik Khan Muhammad not only became close to him but also became his intellectual support for guidance and advice. This friendship was not a temporary or circumstantial constraint, but rather an ideological harmony that grew stronger with time. When Martyr Aslam Baloch initiated the reorganization of Baloch Liberation Army and began the process of shifting the movement and organization towards an institutional and revolutionary structure, Malik Khan Muhammad Marri was among those commanders who consciously supported this change, completely rejecting tribal traditions, family ties and local interests. He was among those who not only accepted Aslam Baloch's ideology but also adhered to it until the last moment of his life. His attachment was not based on a personal connection but on the ideological foundation that Aslam Baloch had incorporated into the body of the movement like a soul through intellectual independence and revolutionary organization.

From the silent construction of initial organizational structure of BLA to the reorganization during sensitive periods and the continuous maintenance of internal stability, Malik Khan Muhammad Marri played key roles that can only be recognized by those who know the process from within the movement. His life was not only military but also intellectual, social, political and organizational.

He died after a long illness at the age of eighty-six and according to the organizational decision, his burial was carried out with full national honors and respect. Today, his memory is being paid tribute to at a collective level so that his services become part of the Baloch national memory.

Baloch Liberation Army considers the death of Commander Malik Khan Marri not only an organizational shock but also a symbol of all those characters of the movement who seemingly silently, play their role in turning the tide of history. His departure makes us feel a great loss but his life teaches us that characters may die but ideology, commitment and sacrifice continue.

BLA expresses its condolences to his family, close comrades and all those members who spent the days and nights of struggle with a leader like Commander Malik Khan Muhammad Marri. As their ideological heirs, we pledge that their memory and struggle will be preserved in organizational curriculum and memory.



Commander Malik Khan Marri

KHUZDAR

Baloch Liberation Army claims responsibility for neutralizing Atta ur Rehman Mengal, an active agent and key operative of occupying state's so-called death squad in Khuzdar. On June 22, 2025, BLA's Intelligence Wing "ZIRAB" and Operational Unit Fateh Squad targeted Atta ur Rehman and his associates during a coordinated armed operation in the Aranji area of Tehsil Wadh, Khuzdar and neutralized him. This operation was carried out after ZIRAB's long-term intelligence gathering, continuous observation and thorough investigation of target's activities. Operational Unit returned safely to its positions after successfully completing the operation.

Atta ur Rehman Mengal's role was purely that of a state tool, acting as a direct accomplice in the Baloch genocide. He was an active participant and representative of gang networks systematically operating against the Baloch national movement in Balochistan under the auspices of the Pakistani army and its intelligence agencies. He played a key role in the formation of state-sponsored death squad networks, local facilitation and the identification, arrest and martyrdom of Baloch political activists over the past several years. Atta ur Rehman was directly involved in the martyrdom, enforced disappearances and genocide of dozens of Baloch activists. He was a central figure in the state's efforts to monitor, identify and plan attacks on Baloch students, activists and nationalist organizations. Not only did he possess weapons, bodyguards and legal immunity, but his tribal identity and military backing allowed him to pursue his anti-Baloch activities with impunity. As a result, hundreds of Baloch were abducted, many of whom were martyred, while more than two hundred bodies were buried in mass graves under his supervision. Atta ur Rehman Mengal was not merely a regional death squad key operative but a continuation of a deep state project—originally designed and implemented by his brother, Shafiq ur Rehman Mengal and father Naseer Mengal. In collaboration with state agencies, Shafiq Mengal established an organized proxy network against Baloch resistance in Khuzdar, Wadh and surrounding areas during the 2000s. This network regularly employed religious extremist groups, sectarian tactics and terrorism against political activists. As a result, countless Baloch youth were either disappeared, tortured, or buried in anonymous graves. The mass graves discovered in the Tootak area in 2014 stand as undeniable evidence of this project. Shafiq Mengal and his network targeted not only Baloch political activists but also the Shia Hazara community and other religious and sectarian minorities, with the objective of weakening the ideological foundations of Baloch national movement by entangling it in religious conflict.

Atta ur Rehman was an active member of his brother's network. He played a key role in organizing local armed criminal gangs (death squads) and provided direct intelligence and operational support to state institutions to accelerate the Baloch genocide. He was granted complete freedom to operate under a full operational framework sanctioned by the occupying army.

BLA's Intelligence Wing "ZIRAB" monitored all of Atta ur Rehman's contacts, movements, local partners and secret collaborators for a long time. Based on this extensive surveillance and intelligence, BLA decided to target him. Through a systematic, coordinated and swift operation, this traitor and perpetrator of the Baloch genocide was successfully neutralized.

Previously, on December 30, 2011, Shafiq ur Rehman Mengal brother of Atta ur Rehman Mengal was targeted in a fidayeen (self-sacrificial) attack carried out by Majeed Brigade, the fidayeen unit of the BLA. In that operation, brave fidayee Darwesh Baloch sacrificed his life outside Shafiq's residence on Arbab Karam Khan Road in Quetta, delivering a decisive blow to the enemy. Although Shafiq Mengal narrowly escaped, dozens of his associates were neutralized, severely weakening his terrorist network.

Baloch Liberation Army emphasizes that our struggle is not a mere reaction to military aggression but a long-term, organized and deeply political resistance based on our national identity, historical understanding of oppression and collective political consciousness. We do not judge any enemy by his identity, affiliation or attire but by his actions, character and activities against the liberation movement. Atta ur Rehman Mengal and his brother Shafiq Mengal are judged in this very context. Every action they took was against the interests of Baloch national cause and aligned with occupying enemy state.

The news of the death of Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, central commander of Baloch Liberation Army, the founder and active commander of the highest institution—Senior Command Council—and the architect of organizational restructuring, is conveyed to the Baloch nation with great sadness and sorrow. Born in 1981 in Zehri, a suburb of Khuzdar, Basit Zehri chose a path of pain, sacrifice, and selfless struggle from an early age. His nationalistic thinking and political maturity led him to join BLA in 2006. His initial role was as an urban guerrilla in Khuzdar, but he soon became a defining figure in the history of urban warfare in Balochistan.

The modern direction in which the organization, structure, and methodology of urban guerrilla warfare were developed in key cities like Khuzdar, Quetta, Hub Chowki, and Gwadar was a direct result of Basit Zehri's strategic vision, leadership, and military expertise. He was not just an operational commander but a complete school of thought who transformed urban resistance into a systematic science of warfare. Basit Zehri mastered the art of thwarting enemy military plans, paralyzing security networks, and converting internal enemy weaknesses into strategic advantages. This foundation elevated him as one of the leading commanders of BLA and the right hand of ideological and military leader Martyr Mentor General Aslam Baloch.

After 2010, Basit Zehri moved to the mountain front, where he applied his combat leadership, networking skills, and ideological training in a broader context. He oversaw the planning, command, and intelligence reorganization of dozens of major operations in various mountainous regions of Balochistan. When BLA was reorganized in 2018 under the leadership of Martyr Mentor Aslam Baloch, and movement was transformed into a modern, institutional, and strategic structure, Basit Zehri was one of the key architects of this transformation. He was entrusted with the responsibility of Central Commander and was elected a member of the Senior Command Council—the highest body of BLA—in which capacity he remained active until his last breath.

In 2018, he suffered from severe kidney failure. Both kidneys failed, and after a long struggle, he was able to undergo a transplant. However, this illness did not hinder his determination, dedication, or struggle. Even during his illness, he continued to participate in organizational, military, and intellectual planning within BLA with the same intensity as a healthy fighter. His perseverance became a model for the youth and redefined the concept of leadership.

Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, did not view resistance merely through a military lens. He envisioned the BLA as an alternative national state structure. He believed that if resistance is not built on a scientific, intellectual, and technical foundation, it becomes nothing more than a reaction. Therefore, he played a fundamental role in transforming BLA into an organized institution. Under his supervision, numerous non-military sectors—including high-tech, finance, media, training, intelligence, research, technology, and political coordination—were developed and strengthened. This organizational mindset helped establish BLA as the strongest and most structured resistance force in Balochistan.

A significant aspect of Basit Zehri's struggle lies in personal sacrifices he endured. The state made every attempt to weaken him by targeting his family. In 2010, his 12-year-old brother, Majeed Zehri, was martyred. In 2011, his father, Muhammad Ramzan Zehri, was killed by intelligence agencies. In 2012, his 21-year-old brother, Martyr Abdul Hayye Zehri alias Nisar, was martyred during a mission. In 2014, two of his cousins, Abdul Samad Zehri and Sher Muhammad Zehri, were martyred alongside Phullain Martyr Ameer ul Mulk Qalandarani in a prolonged battle with enemy forces. Later, another cousin, Martyr Tik Teer Zia ur Rehman Zehri alias Diljan, followed the "last bullet" philosophy and embraced martyrdom by firing his final round while fighting the enemy. That same year, another cousin, Rashid Hussain, was abducted from Dubai and handed over to Pakistan; he remains missing. Eventually, his elder brother, Abdul Hafeez Zehri, was also abducted by state agencies, and other family members were similarly targeted.

JUNE

Despite these unbearable losses, tortures, and traumas, Basit Zehri's ideological steadfastness, resistance awareness, and organizational resolve never faltered. Not only did he remain unshaken, but he also provided BLA and the wider Baloch national resistance movement with an ideological, military, and organizational continuity that has now become deeply rooted and resilient.

With the passing of Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, Baloch Liberation Army has not only lost a combat commander but also been separated from an intellectual, institutional, and ideological foundation—one that played a pivotal role in developing the BLA's non-military sectors with a vision for the future. He was one of the few commanders who aimed to expand the resistance beyond armed struggle and toward the building of state structures. He believed a resistance organization should not operate merely as a military force but as a de facto alternative to the state—with civilian institutions, policy-making bodies, and cyber defense capabilities. This vision was reflected in his work and made him a consistent and decisive voice within the organization's decision-making council.

Another vital aspect of his practical vision was the institutional approach he adopted to include new generation in the organization. He personally remained in contact with hundreds of youths, directly overseeing their political education, combat training, and organizational integration. Not only within BLA, but also across the broader Baloch resistance movement, the institutional blueprints that intellectually and practically prepared new generation were products of his mind and leadership.

He was not only a fighter but also an intellectual mentor—someone who engaged with youth, answered their questions, and transformed their fears into political maturity. Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, was also exemplary in his personal life. He was simple in nature, humble in demeanor, and soft-spoken, yet resolute and exceptionally clear in his decision-making. To his comrades in BLA, he was not merely a commander, but also a brother, mentor, and friend.

His doors were always open. His decisions were made through consultation. His leadership style was devoid of emotional impulsiveness or authoritarian harshness. His personality added a human touch to the resistance—a resistance that did not only raise arms against the enemy but also stood shoulder to shoulder with its people.

Science and research held a special place in his vision of resistance. He consistently emphasized that the wars of the future would be fought on scientific and technological fronts, and that a nation falling behind in these areas would not win even with guns. With this in mind, he developed the organization's capabilities in research, strategy and tactics, cyber security, communications discipline, and both physical and electronic intelligence. He introduced modern techniques to render BLA networks invisible and made information warfare an integral part of the organization's battle doctrine.

Hakalmedia, [6/29/2025 11:13 PM] He clearly understood the dynamics of resistance in a high-tech era and believed in adapting the BLA accordingly.

His most remarkable trait was that he led the resistance not with emotion, but with understanding and insight. Every policy crafted under his guidance was not based on temporary fervor but anchored in long-term strategy. He had an extraordinary ability to interpret state psychology, anticipate enemy behavior, and assess international developments.

In recognition of his revolutionary contributions, Baloch Liberation Army has decided to name an important military unit after its senior commander, Abdul Basit Zehri alias Qazi. This decision is not merely symbolic or an expression of grief, but a practical step aimed at transferring the organization's structure, institutional continuity, and intellectual legacy to future generations. The responsibilities, name, scope, and leadership details of this newly designated unit will soon be shared with Baloch Nation.

کمانڈر باسط زہری

Martyrdom of Abdul Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, is not simply a personal loss—it marks the end of a transformative chapter in the Baloch national resistance, a chapter that elevated BLA from a conventional organization into an institution, a force, and a visionary alternative system. He was not only a military leader, but also an intellectual architect, an organizer, and a revolutionary strategist. His work spanned from the battlefield to political structuring, intellectual planning, and the creation of scientific models of resistance. The resolve, foresight, and dignity with which he carried on his struggle—despite illness, personal loss, and relentless state repression—have now become a lasting standard for Baloch youth.

Qazi's life proved that resistance is not merely about taking up arms; it is a discipline, a purposeful way of life, and an intellectual direction that every generation must study and embrace. His political maturity, organizational prudence, and moral credibility gave the BLA a rare balance between internal cohesion and external relevance. He was among the leaders of the resistance movement who emphasized intellectual structure, strategic planning, and institutional development over emotional slogans.

With the martyrdom of Abdul Basit Zehri, alias Qazi, Baloch Liberation Army is bidding farewell to an era. Yet, the ideology of that era—its vision and structural foundation—remains alive and active on every front of the organization.

03 CTD DECLARED AS BALOCH NATIONAL ENEMY INSTITUTION, FIGHTERS TAKE OVER MASTUNG

On Tuesday morning, Baloch Liberation Army fighters conducted coordinated attacks at two separate locations within Mastung city. Under a highly organized strategy, fighters took control of the Tehsil Office, three banks and several other state institutions. Crucial documents were seized from government offices, enemy personnel were disarmed and their weapons confiscated. During this time, BLA fighters advanced deep into the city, conducting full patrols that not only paralyzed the enemy's covert networks but also exposed the hollow reality of the cowardly occupying forces.

Counter-Terrorism Department (CTD), a terrorist wing of occupying Pakistani army and police, attempted to halt the operation using armored vehicles. Our fighters responded with heavy weaponry, including rocket launchers and automatic rifles, forcing the enemy into retreat. Every counterattack launched by enemy was repelled with military precision. As a result, BLA fighters effectively took full control of Mastung city for two hours.

Meanwhile, CTD — a terrorist extension of the state operating under the occupying state's command — attempted a direct attack on Baloch Liberation Army freedom fighters. This attack was completely foiled, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy. BLA has long maintained a clear policy regarding the police and Levies forces: they are not to be targeted institutionally. However, individuals within these forces who are directly involved in the enemy's war machinery fall within the scope of our military operations.

Given the latest incident and mounting evidence from the past, it is now absolutely clear that the CTD is not only complicit in the Baloch genocide, enforced disappearances and state terrorism, but has become an active combatant force. Therefore, Baloch Liberation Army officially declares CTD a "Baloch National Enemy Institution." From this day forward, CTD will be treated as a direct military target, equivalent to the occupying army. BLA's Senior Command Council has issued clear instructions to all units: launch direct attacks on CTD personnel and installations without hesitation. All Baloch civilians are hereby strongly advised to maintain a safe distance from CTD personnel and infrastructure. The public is urged to enforce a social boycott against this terrorist proxy force of occupying state and to cease all interactions or cooperation with its members. Through this declaration, BLA also issues a final warning to all Baloch individuals serving in the CTD: if you continue to serve in this criminal entity, you will be treated as traitors, collaborators in Baloch genocide and enemies of the Baloch nation. However, any Baloch personnel who choose to resign from the CTD following this announcement will not be targeted by BLA.

another unit targeted enemy army in mountainous region of Amach using a IED. After the explosion, fighters launched a fierce attack with automatic weapons, resulting in the elimination of at least 7 enemy personnel and injuries to several others. US DECISION DOES NOT AFFECT THE AUTHENTICITY OF OUR STRUGGLE STANDS FIRM IN ITS RESISTANCE POSITION

The recent decision by the United States to designate Majeed Brigade, a special unit of Baloch Liberation Army, as a foreign terrorist organization is a deviation from ground realities and an implicit endorsement of the colonial narrative by an international power. We view this decision without surprise and without any sense of added pressure. Baloch Liberation Army is a resistance force, active solely against the military domination of the occupying state, and is committed to the liberation of its occupied motherland.

The fact remains clear: Pakistan occupied Balochistan in 1948 by force of arms. The BLA is a continuation of the resistance that began that very day. We are not a passing political reaction, but a historical, national and defensive reality. BLA is the armed embodiment of Baloch national pride, which does not require external validation or any international certification.

We operate under the rules of war as defined in international humanitarian law, specifically Common Article III of the Geneva Conventions. The BLA is an organized military force conducting all operations in strict compliance with these standards, which define the rights of combatants and the protection of civilians. We have consistently adhered to these principles, and non-state resistance movements worldwide have received moral, legal and political recognition under the same framework.

All BLA operations are directed against the Pakistan Army, Frontier Corps, intelligence networks, death squads and their collaborator gangs within Balochistan. Our struggle is for our motherland—the land of our ancestors—seized from us by force. We are not opposed to the people of Pakistan, nor to any world power. Our arms are raised solely against the occupier, whoever that may be and will remain so until the occupation ends.

The allegations put forward by the US echo the same narrative that Pakistan has used as propaganda for decades. Targeting civilians is not part of our manifesto. At the same time, we make it clear that we are under no obligation to justify the nature of our struggle to anyone, nor will we conform to any narrative that serves state interests.

We are aware that security, treaties and geopolitical interests shape U.S. policy. We recognize this reality, yet we also know that such designations often reflect political balancing rather than justice on the ground. We do not regard these lists as legal or moral authority. Criminalizing a seventy-five-year-old indigenous resistance waged on our own soil does not represent international justice.

Our struggle falls firmly within the parameters of international humanitarian law. Baloch Liberation Army is an organized military force conducting operations in compliance with the laws of war. We are a non-state force defending our people against occupation. If resistance against state oppression, genocide and slavery is justified anywhere in the world, then Balochistan is no exception.

Our struggle will continue until the last occupying personnel leaves our motherland. When a nation is stripped of its land, identity, language and resources, every individual becomes a Fidayee (self-sacrificer). Today, every conscious Baloch is a Fidayee. This war is not only fought with weapons, but also with awareness, sacrifice and collective dignity.

The US decision comes at a time when Balochistan's vast mineral wealth has become the focus of global capitalist interests. Pakistan is offering these resources to foreign corporations and plans are being advanced to turn Balochistan into a silent economic colony. When national resistance stands in the way of these projects, it is no surprise to see such resistance declared unlawful on a global stage. We understand this context and remain unwavering.

We invite the world to visit Balochistan and witness the reality on the ground. See the mass graves where our youth lie buried. Look into the eyes of mothers whose sons have been missing for decades. Witness cities where speech is forbidden and villages subjected to Pakistani military operations carried out under the cover of darkness. Then decide—if organized resistance rises against such oppression, is it terrorism or is it the defense of human dignity? The United States and the international community must acknowledge that Baloch nation and its revolutionary resistance are naturally aligned with global powers that value justice, stability and principled partnerships. The BLA is a disciplined resistance movement rooted in national vision and respectful engagement with the world. In contrast, Pakistan has violated every principle upon which civilized nations are built. History records that Pakistan has repeatedly broken agreements, promises and trust for self-interest, making it an unreliable state. If the United States seeks genuine stability, grounded relations and lasting regional interests, it must recognize its natural allies—the Baloch nation, with its modern and principled resistance, and the Baloch Liberation Army, committed solely to the liberation and justice of its motherland. Recognizing and strengthening these forces is essential to achieving lasting peace and principled balance in the region.

We pledge to our nation that the BLA will never retreat from its ideological, military or revolutionary responsibilities. We will not allow state propaganda, international labels, or global decisions to block our path. Our struggle will continue until Baloch national liberation and sovereignty are achieved. everything is fine now? can't change many things because it is a translation

19 DASHT

Baloch Liberation Army's Fidayee Unit Majeed Brigade targeted a large and heavily armed convoy of enemy Pakistani army personnel at Kunchiti Cross in the Dasht area of Kech district, Balochistan, on Wednesday, September 18, 2025. The enemy convoy consisted of six buses carrying dozens of Pakistani army personnel and a separate army squad to protect them. The convoy had arrived in Gwadar from Karachi a day before and was departing from Gwadar to Turbat on the day of the attack. The attack was carried out at 1 o'clock in the afternoon under systematic planning, vigorous intelligence preparation and full military discipline when the enemy was negligent and BLA's Fidayeen took advantage of the opportunity to launch a decisive attack with full skill, tact and determination.

The first phase of the Majeed Brigade's Fidayee operation began when Fidayee Sangat Altaf alias Chakar collided with a VBIED against the main bus of enemy convoy, resulting in a massive explosion. The bus was completely destroyed and all onboard enemy personnel were eliminated on the spot. Immediately after the blast, Fidayee Sangat Gwahram alias Zagrain and Fidayee Sangat Khalil alias Kulmeer targeted the remaining buses and the security squad inside the enemy forts. Despite the enemy's retaliation, both Fidayeen continued the attack and froze the enemy's movement. The attack lasted more than thirty minutes and when both Fidayeen ran out of weapons and bullets after eliminating several enemy personnel, they sacrificed their lives on their nation and soil, following the philosophy of last bullet under BLA's Fidayee (self-sacrificer) discipline.

According to Baloch Liberation Army's ground sources and intelligence wing "ZIRAB," at least 32 Pakistani army personnel were neutralized and dozens were wounded, including several officers. More than three buses were completely destroyed in the attack, and the enemy suffered several hours of delay and difficulty in shifting the bodies from the battleground and transferring the wounded personnel. After the attack, enemy immediately dispatched aerial reinforcements, drone surveillance and ground troops to the scene, but due to complete destruction, organizational chaos and deep psychological effects, enemy army took hours to conduct relief operations, causing most of wounded enemy personnel to die on the spot. For BLA, this mission is not just a successful operation but a practical expression of belief that the enemy will not be allowed to find peace in any corner of Balochistan.

The attack was carried out at a time when the state of Pakistan and its ally China are engaged in efforts to increase military, diplomatic and legal pressure globally against Baloch national movement. Recently, Pakistan and China proposed a joint resolution to include the Baloch Liberation Army and its Fidayee Unit Majeed Brigade in the list of terrorist organizations under the 1267 Committee of the UN Security Council. Through this resolution, Pakistan wanted to give the impression that Baloch resistance organizations are linked to international extremist groups like al-Qaeda or ISIS. However, the United States, United Kingdom and France rejected proposal because the evidence presented was not only inadequate but also did not meet the standards of international law. This rejection revealed the weakness of Pakistan's claim and showed that there is no international solidarity against Baloch Liberation Army and its Fidayee Unit Majeed Brigade, a dream enemy states see. It was a diplomatic defeat that once again proves that our struggle is a national movement based on systematic, ideological and political grounds, which cannot be confined to the terror label.

SEPTEMBER

Baloch Liberation Army salutes the three great sons of the soil who were martyred in this Fidayee operation with great pride, respect and national spirit. Martyr Fidayee Sangat Altaf alias Chakar, son of Abdul Rahman, belonged to Alndur area of Buleda. He became affiliated with the BLA in 2023, within a short time, he gained the leadership's confidence with his ability, honesty and determination, fulfilling several organizational responsibilities as an urban guerrilla. Later, he moved to the mountain front, joined Majeed Brigade and received military training for nine months. His testimony, sacrifice and Fidayee actions have created a new chapter in the history of Majeed Brigade.

Martyr Fidayee Sangat Gwahram alias Zagrain, son of Farooq, belongs to Panjgur area of Paroom, Lagrok. He joined BLA in 2023 and was found from the beginning to be most suited for a Fidayee unit due to his seriousness, dedication and silence. He not only had military qualifications but was also unique in ideological understanding and organizational consciousness. His martyrdom has become a metaphor for Baloch youth.

Martyr Fidayee Sangat Khalil alias Kulmeer, son of Fazal, belongs to Turbat area of Saami, Balochi Bazaar. He joined Baloch Liberation Army in 2023 and moved to the mountain front after performing numerous responsibilities as an urban guerrilla. In 2024, he became part of Majeed Brigade and gained a significant role in a short time due to his commitment, military competence and organizational transparency. His personality was a reflection that Fidayee is the name of consciousness not a temporary spirit and that consciousness has now become unbeaten.

Baloch Liberation Army makes it clear that all our military operations are a legitimate national resistance against the enemy state while complying with international human and war laws. Unlike the enemy army, we do not target innocent civilians, attack public property, or harm non-militant forces. Our Fidayee operations and guerrilla strategy focus on enemy›s military forces, centers, convoys, checkpoints and collaborators of enemy exploitation sources and war networks. Our struggle is based on the principle that an occupied state has no right to peace, nor can she claim neutrality amid exploitation. In occupied Balochistan, wherever the enemy is present, they will face intense attacks and resistance.

Baloch Liberation Army claims responsibility for the attack which was carried out by elite unit, the Majeed Brigade and warns occupying state vaguely that as long as Balochistan is occupied, our armed resistance will continue with full force, discipline and purpose. No Balochistan highways, convoys, checkpoints or enemy fronts will be safe. Our Fidayeen operations are not just reactions but forms of ideological perseverance, military insight and national consciousness that surpass the enemy›s military plans to defeat us. Our guerrilla forces are constantly undergoing organizational development, war preparation and intellectual centrality. Baloch resistance has now entered a new phase where every attack is not just revenge but a thoughtful decision. Every sacrifice is not just a passion but an ideological covenant and every Fidayee is not just a soldier but a complete revolutionary character. Unless the last sign of occupation on Baloch land is erased, this caravan of resistance will continue to advance.

BALOCH LIBERATION ARMY

Special Operations

BLA freedom fighters conducted 15 special operations this year, including four operations by BLA's elite unit Majeed Brigade, six by Fateh Squad and five by Special Tactical Operations Squad (STOS), in which occupying forces and their collaborators suffered heavy casualties and property losses. The BLA's intelligence wing 'ZIRAB' (Zypher Research and Analyses Bureau) played a key role in all these special operations.

Majeed Brigade

TURBAT, BOLAN, NOSHKI, DASHT

On 4 January, Majeed Brigade, the elite Fidayee unit of the Baloch Liberation Army, attacked an occupying Pakistani army convoy at Behman, eight kilometers from Turbat city, yesterday at 5:45 pm, causing heavy casualties to the enemy. The enemy army convoy, which included five buses and seven military vehicles, was heading from Karachi to the FC Headquarters in Turbat. The Majeed Brigade's Fidayee unit detonated a VBIED into the convoy, eliminating 47 army personnel and wounding more than 30. One bus was completely destroyed, others were partially disabled and a military vehicle was completely destroyed in the attack. This operation was carried out based on information provided by the organization's intelligence wing, "ZIRAB." The success of this mission reflects the excellent performance of our intelligence and the unparalleled sacrifice of the Fidayee Sangat.

On March 18, Baloch Liberation Army announced the successful conclusion of Operation Dara-e-Bolan on March 18. This operation consisted of two parts, the first phase of which was completed in February 2024 with the capture of Mach city while the second phase began with the attack on the Jaffar Express in March 2025 and was completed after a week of intense battle. In this operation, the occupying Pakistani army suffered the biggest defeat in its history in Balochistan, where more than 354 personnel were eliminated over 100 were wounded and 214 personnel were taken hostage. Due to the enemy's stubbornness and refusal to exchange prisoners of war all the hostages were executed.

During this operation, 13 BLA freedom fighters were embraced martyrdom including six Fidayeen from the Majeed Brigade, four fighters from the Fateh Squad and three fighters from STOS.

Demonstrating its military prowess, combat skills and intelligence superiority Baloch Liberation Army targeted a convoy of eight Pakistani army buses in Noshki, except Bolan in a VBIED Fidayeen attack and ambushed the targets. More than 90 army personnel were eliminated, and dozens were wounded in this attack. Thus, in just one-week BLA eliminated over 354 enemy personnel and wounded more than 100 while also shooting down a drone reflecting the success of the Baloch resistance force against the enemy's modern military technology.

Baloch Liberation Army always considers international laws of war and human rights principles. Following these principles Senior Command Council of BLA, instead of immediately implementing the court decision against these prisoners offered the occupying army an exchange of prisoners of war. However, being fully aware of the enemy's breach of promises, cunning nature and deceit, a 48-hour ultimatum was given.

As expected, the enemy drunk with power took the path of aggression and instead of releasing the prisoners of war, launched a military operation. However, only five Fidayeen of the Majeed Brigade eliminated several highly trained Zarrar Company SSG commandos of the Pakistani army for two days. After eliminating dozens of enemy personnel when their last stock of bullets ran out, they embraced martyrdom with their last bullets, making it clear to the enemy that the Baloch resistance would continue under any circumstances.

The inside intelligence provided by the BLA's intelligence wing "ZIRAB," played an important role in this entire operation. After thoroughly analyzing the enemy's movements, military plans and strategy, BLA took timely action which resulted in a complete shift in the balance of the battle and inflicted heavy losses on the occupying army.

Baloch Liberation Army's Fidayee Unit Majeed Brigade targeted a large and heavily armed convoy of enemy Pakistani army personnel at Kunchiti Cross in the Dasht area of Kech district, Balochistan, on Wednesday, September 18, 2025. The enemy convoy consisted of six buses carrying dozens of Pakistani army personnel and a separate army squad to protect them. The convoy had arrived in Gwadar from Karachi a day before and was departing from Gwadar to Turbat on the day of the attack. The attack was carried out at 1 o'clock in the afternoon under systematic planning, vigorous intelligence preparation and full military discipline when the enemy was negligent and BLA's Fidayeen took advantage of the opportunity to launch a decisive attack with full skill, tact and determination.

The first phase of the Majeed Brigade's Fidayee operation began when Fidayee Sangat Altaf alias Chakar collided with a VBIED against the main bus of enemy convoy, resulting in a massive explosion. The bus was completely destroyed and all onboard enemy personnel were eliminated on the spot. Immediately after the blast, Fidayee Sangat Gwahram alias Zagrain and Fidayee Sangat Khalil alias Kulmeer targeted the remaining buses and the security squad inside the enemy forts. Despite the enemy's retaliation, both Fidayeen continued the attack and froze the enemy's movement. The attack lasted more than thirty minutes and when both Fidayeen ran out of weapons and bullets after eliminating several enemy personnel, they sacrificed their lives on their nation and soil, following the philosophy of last bullet under BLA's Fidayee (self-sacrificer) discipline.

According to Baloch Liberation Army's ground sources and intelligence wing "ZIRAB," at least 32 Pakistani army personnel were neutralized and dozens were wounded, including several officers. More than three buses were completely destroyed in the attack, and the enemy suffered several hours of delay and difficulty in shifting the bodies from the battleground and transferring the wounded personnel.
